WHAT came came near being a fatal accident, resulting from reckless driving by a "couple of chaps" from the country who had imbibed too freely of benzine, occurred on Saturday afternoon near Mr Hummell's residence on East Main street. Little Elmer, aged 3 years, son of Henry Ellsworth, a fireman on the Midland railway, was playing on the stone crossing on Jackson street, when a two-horse team to which was attached a heavy farm wagon, came bounding forward from the gas works. Before he could get out of the way he was knocked down by the horses, and it is claimed that one wheel of the wagon passed over him. The team and drunken drivers disappeared, and the boy was picked up—it was thought maimed for life or fatally injured. He was carried to his home in the old Davis property near by, and examined. To the great astonishment of those who witnessed the occurrence and turned their heads in horror as they saw the boy run over, the little fellow was only sitghtly bruised about both knees. One front tooth was knocked out. He was toddling about on Sunday happy as ever. Unfortunately there seems to be no way of identifying the reckless drivers of the team. They should be arrested and fined heavily.

A SPLENDID Republican rally was held in the town of Boody on Saturday night. The school house was filled to overflowing with voters and ladies, and J. A. Barnes presided. Stirring short speeches were made by Harry B Durfee, J. M. Lowry, Col. H. W. Rowell, Jason Rogers and W. W. Foster. The meeting was a complete success, and the fact that it was largely attended and very enthusiastic, shows that a good report may be expected from Blue Mound township in November.

Physic to agriculture they'll apply,
And write prescriptions for a sickly crop,
With fever mixtures, when the lands too dry,
Inflammatory action they will stop,
But when rheumatism does the body rack,
Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil will cure it in a crack.

R. W. Crum Replies to Dr. A. D. Bridgman.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN:—The following appeared in your issue of last evening:

If the doctor above has reference to me, I have this to say in reply: That whoever says that I have ever offered money or bribes in any form for the sake of influencing a vote or votes, is a malicious and willful slanderer and liar.

A. D. BRIDGMAN.

In reply to the above I would say that Dr. A. D. Bridgman, on a visit to me at my father's house, while I was sick, asked me if I had changed my mind and inquired as to how I would vote. I replied that I intended to vote for Garfield. Before leaving he said that he would make me a present of two dollars if I would vote for Hancock. I replied that he could go to h—ll with Hancock; that I intended to vote for Garfield.

R. W. CRUM.

MT. ZION, Oct. 4, 1880.

Personally appeared before me Robert W. Crum, who upon his oath declares that the matters and things set forth in the above communication are true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

A Word to Our Readers.

When you read of a remedy that will cure all diseases beware of it, but when you read of a pure vegetable compound which claims to cure only certain parts of the body, and furnishes high proof that it does this, you can safely try it and with the assurance that it will help you. This is just what Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure does. It cures all troubles of the lower portion of the body and none others. It will not help the toothache, ear-ache nor consumption, but it will put your body in a vigorous and healthy state where you can enjoy life and appreciate its good things. Try it. For sale by W. C. THE FIRST DAY.

Auspicious Commencement of the Third Annual Reunion of the M. C. V. Association.

The Streets of the City Thronged With the Boys who Faced Rebel Bullets, and Strangers.

Decatur in Holiday Attire and Ready for Thursday's Grand Parade.

From Wednesday's Daily.

This is the first day of the long talked of and extensively advertised third annual reunion of the soldiers of the late war, given under the management of the Macon County Veteran Association, in conjunction with the annual reunion of survivors of the 21st Ill. Reg., of which Gen. Grant was the first colonel; and to-day the streets are thronged with the boys who wore the blue in the trying hours of the country's history, who came from Kansas, Texas, Missouri, Iowa, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Indiana, California, Colorado, New York, New Mexico, Montana, Ohio, Vermont, Kentucky, and various cities and localities in Illinois. To-morrow the city and "Camp Sheridan" will be packed and jammed full of veterans and sight seers—fully 25,000.

AT SUNRISE

This morning Battery "A," of Danville, fired a National Salute of 46 guns, the booming reports doubtless being heard all over the county, and awakening our people from their slumbers, and at 8 o'clock the Decatur Band, in their new uniforms, played in the park stand attracting a large crowd of people.

All day the survivors of the 41st, 21st, 116th, 115th and other regiments and surviving prisoners of the late war have registered at the tabernacle and received badges. The veterans then reported at "Camp Sheridan" and have been assigned quarters as speedily as possible.

THE ROSTERS

as inspected at 12 o'clock to-day, show 1,000 soldiers of the late war in the city, 135 surviving prisoners of the late war, 70 old members of the 41st regiment, and a large representation of members of the 21st.

THE DECORATIONS

on the line of march and throughout the entire city, are made on a grand scale. Special mention of each elaborate decoration would consume entirely too much valuable space; suffice it to say that everywhere is noticeable a liberal and commendable display of the stars and stripes, bunting, pictures, etc., appropriate to the occasion. The tabernacle—reunion headquarters—is a scene of splendor and dazzling beauty, the special committee having done their work well.

Gen. Grant and party arrived in Decatur this afternoon at 2:40 o'clock, and were given a grand welcome.

TO-NIGHT AND TO-MORROW'S PROGRAMME.

AN UNANSWERED QUESTION.

"Papa, what made you go to war?"
Said Jennie, climbing from the chair
Upon my lap; "what did you for?"
And then she hugged me like a bear,
"Cause if you hadn't gone, you see,
You'd have two legs to canter me."

"Why, child, I went because—" and then
I stopped to think. Of course I knew;
I'd often told her brother Ben
When the recital filled me through,
And still she urged, "What did you for:
Papa, what made you go to war:"

I looked abroad. The blacks were free,
But voiceless, voteless, filled with woe,
Slaves of their masters seemed to be
As much as twenty years ago.
She said: "And what did Uncle Dorr Get killed in front of Richmond for?"

A rifle club went wheeling by;
I saw the murdered Chisholm's ghost;
I heard the Hamburg martyrs cry—
The rebel yell—the vaunting boast;
I saw the wounds of patriot dead;
"What made you go?" my Jennie said.

"My dear," I said—but nothing more,
For, glancing through the Senate halls,
The rebel generals had the floor,
And ruled the Nation's council halls!
"Papa," she urged, "why did you go?"
"My child," I said, "I do not know."

The Weekly Republican.

AND still Mr. Hundley is silent.

GRANT'S speech at Warren has kindled the greatest enthusiasm, and the congressional committee will issue it as a campaign document.

WE are authorized to say that Mr. W. C. Outten is not a candidate for the office of States Attorney. The use of his name in that connection has been entirely unauthorized by him.

GEN. DICK ROWETT of Carlinville, made a splendid impression upon all who heard him speak in this county. He is earnest and stalwart, and these are taking qualities this year.

THE total expense of the war was over $13,000,000,000. It would be a good deal of a "change" to vote that all that money was spent in vain.

IT is estimated that the veteran soldiers of New York state do not number more than 60,000, and as 50,000 are already enrolled among the Boys in Blue, the inquisitive New York Commercial Advertiser wants to know where the Hancock boys are to come from.

THE Boston Transcript is astonished to find that prominent "gentlemen" from the south, who have lately visited that city, so far from denying the use of tissue ballots to defraud southern Republicans of their rights, defend and applaud such outrages.

BLACKBURN says the South will wipe out all the war legislation that was "enacted in hatred and revenge." As the South believes all the war legislation was of that kind, that would be a pretty thorough wipe—in fact, would put us back where we were before the war.

FOR his own sake, "T. Hines," of Maroa—who used to preach, but whose "call" seems to have run out—had just as well not stir up that beer club matter very much. There is an odor about it that might not mix well with "the odor of sanctity' which doth hedge about a preacher of the gospel.

WADE HAMPTON, speaking for the south and secession, says: "We believe, as firmly as in the eternal word of God, that we are right; and we have a settled faith, which no trials can shake, that in His own good time the right will be made manifest." A rebel flag floats appropriately over that sentence.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Cincinnati Enquirer naively confesses that he started out eagerly last week in the expectation of finding dissatisfaction among the Republicans of one of the Ohio congressional districts, but found there was not the slightest dissatisfaction to encourage him and other Democrats.

"T. HINES," the alleged preacher of Maroa, in his card in the Review, says he is not a recent accession to the ranks of the Democracy, and that we misrepresented him in saying so. We never said that he was a recent accession to the ranks of the Democracy—never intimated even that he was a "distinguished flopper"—for we never could muster up cheek enough to claim that he ever had sense enough to be anything else than a Democrat of the most rotio class. What we did say was that he was a "recent accession to the ranks of Democratic orators," which is true to the best of our knowledge, for we never heard of him in that capacity previous to his Forsyth effort. If he ever made an exhibition of himself in that way before we never heard of it.

GEORGE W. JULIAN, now an advocate of the solid south, once said in Congress: "If I were president of the United States. I would mass the armies of the Union, march them through every seceding state from the Potomac to the gulf, burn, pillage and devastate the country, and write death upon the sky and paint hell upon the sky." What occasioned such a rabid change in George W. Julian?

THE Indianapolis Journal says: "The best Democratic speech of the campaign was made recently at Marysville, by Hon. Sol. Claypool, of this state. He advocated the absolute independence of the states, even going so far as to justify the principle of secession. He declared that the war on the part of the government was a crime, and that the southern people were victims. This, he argued, entitled them to remuneration for their losses, and their return to equal rights with our own, which he predicted would be secured to them by Hancock's election."

"DISTINGUISHED FLOPPERS."

The Democratic party during the present campaign has solaced itself very considerably by frequent allusion to what it has been pleased to call "distinguished floppers." The organs of the party have filled their columns with accounts of these wonderful accessions, and though many of them turn out to be false alarms, speedily contradicted by their subjects, the organs do not seem to find it convenient to publish the denials. Others who are gazetted as "distinguished floppers" find themselves famous for the first time in their lives, never having been "distinguished" on any other occasion.

But it is with the other class that we have to deal just now—the floppers who turn out not to be floppers after all. The Decatur Review, a day or two ago, announced in heavy head lines that Senator Jones of Nevada had come out for Hancock. A good portion of its valuable space was devoted to an alleged letter of Senator Jones, giving the reasons for his flop. It only took two lines of valuable space in the same paper next day to contradict the false report, and these two lines are more than that paper generally spares to correct its unblushing falsehoods. Some months ago the editor of the Review gave a particularly loud whoop when it announced that one Col. Hays, of Pittsburg, had flopped, but it was not until after we had shown up the lie by publishing Col. Hays' denial of the story that "Truthful Sam" could find space to say that it was "a mistake." So, also, the same paper announced early in the campaign that Hamilton Fish had come out for Hancock—a lie which it has never yet taken the trouble to correct.

But there are certain "distinguished floppers" concerning whom the Review maintains a most remarkable silence. It has never yet had a word to say about Judge Orton, of Wisconsin, who came out for Garfield months ago, nor of Sabin, the McLean county Democrat, who is now making Republican speeches. It has made no mention of the De Pauws, of New Albany—the wealthy Democratic manufacturers—who publicly announce their intention of voting for Garfield and Porter. Neither has the Review had a word to say of Hugh McCullough, the former secretary of the treasury, who voted for Tilden in 1876, but who now announces his intention of voting for Garfield, nor does its editor think it worth while to mention the Vocke Brothers, influential Germans of Napoleon, Ohio, who, having long acted with the Democrats, recently shouldered torches in a Republican procession, and publicly proclaimed their intention to vote for Garfield. Neither does the Review care to mention that "distinguished flopper," Col. W. P. Rend, the Chicago Irishman who has come out from the Democratic party and joined the Garfield forces. Of course, it is rather too much to expect anything like fairness from a paper which supports a candidate who is running for the presidency under false colors. A party that seeks to obtain power by seeming to be what it is not can hardly be expected to pay much attention to those principles of truth and fair-dealing which are recognized as prime necessities among honorable people. An editor who has shown his readiness, to be fish to one and fowl to another, all for the sake of getting votes, can not be expected to be over scrupulous in the matter of fair discussion. But we regard it as a duty, nevertheless, to puncture the wind-bag occasionally.

AND Mr. Hundley pays no more attention to the charge against him, to which we called his attention two days ago, than if he was entirely above the infirmities and frailties of human nature. We should like to have him tell the public whether it is true, as has been reported, that he used the beer argument to help his candidacy along in Maroa—that is, whether he "set 'em up to the boys," as has been alleged, at Schenck's saloon. We shall be glad to publish his denial of this grave charge, and to assist him in setting himself straight before the good people of the county.

THE Democracy could always find enough authority in the Federal government for hunting down a slave, but since slavery was abolished they have been unable to find any authority for protecting freedom. It was not centralization for Congress to set a bloodhound after a slave; it is only centralization to call him off. Freedom never was the equal of slavery, in the estimation of the Democratic party.

THAT BRIBERY CASE.

Dr. A. D. Bridgman, of Mt. Zion, sends us the following communication, the extract which he quotes being from a late issue of the REPUBLICAN:

The Democratic bosses in Mt. Zion ought to have a general understanding as to the price to be paid for votes. When one of them offers three dollars and fails, there is no use in the second man offering a dollar less. The doctor and the druggist ought to agree in other things as well as in politics.

If the doctor above has reference to me, I have this to say in reply: That whoever says that I have ever offered money or bribes in any form for the sake of influencing a vote or votes, is a malicious and willful slanderer and liar.

A. D. BRIDGMAN

It will now be in order for some of the "liars" to speak out. We have no personal knowledge of the matter, but we know that it is common talk in Mt. Zion township.

A GENTLEMAN well-known in this city, who owns some vacant lots, was approached by a party not many days ago, with a request to build upon one of his lots a business house to be rented by the latter. The gentleman replied that he would improve the lot in question, in case Gen. Garfield is elected in November, but if Hancock should be chosen president he did not know that he wanted to invest any more money in houses. This feeling of uncertainty as to the future is not confined to Decatur, but is general throughout the country. Thoughtful men ought to consider whether it is best to run the risk of putting the Democratic party in power, when the mere possibility of its success serves to dry up business enterprises, and bring to a standstill the "boom" which is blessing the country to-day. Nobody fears to make plans for the future, in the event of Republican success—it is only "a change" that is dreaded by business men.

WM. A. PHELPS, ESQ., has been nominated by the Republicans of the fifth district of Cook county, as a candidate for representative. Mr. Phelps formerly resided in Decatur, and is well known to many of our people. He is a brother of Mrs. A. W. Hardy, Mrs. B. F. Taylor, and the late Mrs. M. E. Schroeder. He read law with Judge Zane, of Springfield, and has been practicing in Chicago for several years.

IN 1864 a Democratic delegate declared in the National Democratic Convention which pronounced the war a failure, that "a war Democrat and an Abolitionist were links of the same sausage made out of the same dog." That was while the Democrats were putting down the rebellion under Major-General Voorhees.

IF the Indiana soldiers were nearly all Democrats, why did the Indiana Democratic Legislature refuse to vote food, blankets, and medicine for them? And why, oh why, did the Democrats of Indiana elect Thomas A. Hendricks, an anti war Democrat, to the United States Senate?—Indianapolis Journal.

Why were the Knights of the Golden Circle exclusively Democrats? And why was the great War Governor, Oliver P. Morton, a Republican?

INDIANA.

The "boom" in Indiana seems to be setting in the direction of the Republicans. The Indianapolis correspondent of the Chicago Times writes:

Republicans are becoming much more confident within the last two days, while a corresponding depression appears to overshadow the democratic headquarters. Democratic betting men have retired from the street corners, and the air is no longer vocal with cheerful Bourbon bluff. But the wind which is blowing cold to-day may blow hot to-morrow, and the scene of last week may be repeated before the expiration of forty-eight hours. Republicans are deriving much solid satisfaction from the withdrawal of Eb Henderson's published announcement that he want's to bet $1,000 to $900 on Landers, and they are attaching great importance to this action.

The meeting of business men called for to-night was quite largely attended by a class of men who are seldom seen at political gatherings. The meeting was addressed by Deacon Richard Smith, of Cincinnati; Gov. Kirkwood, of Iowa, and Judge C. C. Morse. The only noticeable feature of the evening's performance was the statement made by the good deacon, at the conclusion of the reading of Gen. Grant's Warren speech, which was used as a text for his discourse, that although he had opposed Grant's nomination for the presidency in 1880 he would not say he would not advocate his nomination for this high office in 1884, and that, too, without regard to who might be elected this fall. This open surrender to the silent man was received with round after round of cheers; and proved to be the best hit the orator made.

CATARRH

Catarrh of the Nasal Cavities, Acute, Chronic, and Ulcerative, Hay Fever, or Rose Catarrh, Catarrh of the Eye and Ear, and Catarrh of the Throat,

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED WITH

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

CATARRH is a disease of the mucous membrane. Temperaments and constitutions vary its severity in individual cases. Catarrh may arise from a cold or a succession of colds, from sudden change of atmosphere, wearing wet clothing, or exposure to inclement weather, and becoming thoroughly chilled when the digestive organs are in a morbid or inactive condition, and the strength and vital forces exhausted. The disease may arise from a scrofulous condition of the blood, from Scarlet Fever, Measles, and Diphtheria, in which cases the eyes and ear are generally involved and discharge quantities of matter. The discharges from the nose, the distinctive feature in all catarrhal cases from whatever cause they arise, may be thin and watery, and so acid as to cause redness and excoriation of the skin with which they come in contact, or thick and yellowish, emitting a foul odor, or clear and white like the white of an egg. There may be an entire lack of secretion, the surfaces being dry and feverish, the face, front and upper part of the head feeling uncomfortable, and as if it was encircled by a tight, unyielding band. This latter phase is called Dry Catarrh. The free mattery discharges cause the passages to swell and become thickened, rendering breathing through the nose difficult or impossible, and the sufferer finds it necessary to breathe through the mouth, thereby permitting cold air to pass directly to the bronchial tubes and lungs. The matter passing down the throat creates a constant desire to hawk and expectorate to throw it off, but when the membrane is dry and feverish, instead of passing freely down from the nose and throat, the mucus becomes hard and forms into scabs, incrustations, and hard lumps, which adhere so firmly to the nasal passages and throat as to require very persistent efforts to dislodge them. The eye in sympathy becomes inflamed, red, weak, and watery, or in the morning the lids may be found glued together, and matter is secreted in more or less quantity. The ear also becomes seriously affected, discharging quantities of matter, besides being visited by the most violent neuralgic pains, ending frequently in inflammation, ulceration, and finally deafness. The throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs are in many cases affected by catarrh, and when prostration of the nervous system is superadded, such affections become alarming.

A brief survey of this most serious disease warns all who are afflicted with it, to make speedy preparation for its treatment before it becomes chronic. The advantages offered by SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE we confidently believe are to be found in no other remedy. Every step in the preparation, every line in the directions, mark it as a scientific remedy, calculated to meet every phase of the disease. The numerous testimonials from the best people in the United States attest the esteem in which it is held by those who have been freed from the most destructive and dangerous disease with which mankind is to-day afflicted.

LYMAN TRUMBULL AS A DEMOCRATIC REFORMER!

His $10,000 Poor Man's Plaster!

In 1868 Lyman Trumbull, then a United States Senator, argued before the Supreme Court of the United States the noted "McCardle Case." This case involved the constitutionality of the Reconstruction Measures. Mr. Trumbull had been the chief promoter of these measures in the Senate, by reason of his position as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. His appearance in the Supreme Court on the side of the Government was not in any respect wrong or improper, but at the time nobody expected, or contemplated, that he would or could obtain pay for such service. He, however, did present to the War Department a bill of Ten Thousand Dollars for services in that case. It was paid in installments—the last payment, after delay and objections, being paid upon a bill rendered in Mr. Trumbull's own handwriting, of which the following is a

FAC SIMILE:

And this notwithstanding a statute of the United States, which runs as follows.

"No officer in any branch of the public service, or any other person whose salary or emoluments is or are fixed by law shall receive any additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation in any form whatever, for the disbursement of public money, or for any other service whatever."

Senator Trumbull received $5,000 a year salary as Senator, but for an argument of a few hours, upon the constitutionality of a measure for which he was specially responsible, he charged and drew from the United States Treasury, $10,000.

Yet he is canvassing this State preaching economy, grumbling about high taxes and extravagant officials. He wants to be Governor, and to direct the financial affairs of a State which he once endeavored to disgrace by urging that the State debt be repudiated. It would be a singular spectacle if the great State of Illinois, now when she is out of debt, and enjoying prosperity under Republican management, should select as her chief magistrate a man whom Senator Douglas denounced as the author of "an infamous scheme of repudiation."

FINELY POWDERED. HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles) as with other Lyes, which, being sold in tin cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

INDIANA.

Echoes of the Great Battle.

The eyes of the whole country are upon the Hoosier state just now, which fact renders the following compilation of news from that region peculiarly interesting. The Indianapolis correspondent of the Chicago Times says, in summing up the situation:

The vote this year in Indiana will be larger than it ever was before. It will probably approximate 480,000. Porter will receive many thousand votes more than Ben Harrison did in 1876, and Landers will forge ahead of Williams. It will be a surprise if either one is elected by a majority greater than four thousand five hundred or five thousand, about one per cent. of the total vote of the state. If the Greenbackers stand firm, as it now seems they may, the result will be amazingly close, and no man or set of men can tell what the result will be until the figures are all in and added up. The Democrats guessed the Greenbackers right two and four years ago, but this campaign they have made two or three unfortunate dickers with them. The last one is turning out worse than any of the others, and, as the Times correspondent predicted would be the case, the effect of the Yeagley-Jarvis sell-out has been damaging to the Democrats. They see now that they made a bad mistake, and are doing their best to rectify the error, but as yet without avail. The rag-tag and bob-tail voters who compose this fiat party are highly incensed at the conduct of Yeagley, and letters are pouring in upon the chairman of the national state committee by the hundreds, denouncing him in extravagant and highly-colored phraseology of language as "Judas," "a trritor," "a Benedict Arnold," "a man beneath contempt," "a political cheat," and the like. In abusing Yeagley and his confrere for "selling out," as they term it, the writers, as a rule, hold up to unsparing execration the men who are buying, and put both on the same plane. This is where it hurts the Democratic party. The Times correspondent called at the national headquarters to-day, and from Acting Chairman Brouse learned that Yeagley's place on the state ticket had been filled by the nomination of Francis T. Waring, of Bluffton, all the members of the state central committee having signified their choice by telegraph.

"Is there much feeling over this matter among your people?" asked the correspondent.

"I should say there was feeling—a feeling of deep and bitter indignation."

"They are convinced that it was a clear sell-out, I suppose?"

"Yes, and we have the dead-wood on the parties, too. The Democrats did not care so much for Yeagley as they did for his paper, the Sun. Yeagley denies that he ever tried to sell out himself or his paper to the Democrats, but in that he simply tells an untruth, for he came to Mr. Speers, the editor and one-sixth owner of the Sun, and told him in so many words that they could make big money by changing the policy of the paper and coming out in support of Landers for governor. Speers declined to enter into the scheme, whereupon Yeagley became urgent, and in the course of the conversation said if the thing could be done he (Yeagley) could get the money before the bank closed that day. This was less than a week ago. Yeagley then tried to induce Speer to sell out his sixth interest, and said he could have his own price, at the same time begging him to get out of the way. This proposition was refused, and the rest you know as well as I. And now, in the face of this, for Yeagley to come out and deny having an understanding with the Democracy requires unlimited gall. This business has done more to arouse the Nationals than anything that has yet happened, and is going to hurt the Democratic party more than they can immagine."

It will be seen that a very critical point has been reached in the National Greenback canvass, and, unless appearances are deceptive, a feeling is settling in against the Democracy. They have two weeks in which to counteract this influence, and it will be their business to do it. If they succeed in nullifying the furious fiatists before the 12th of October the problem will have resolved itself down to a single question of arithmetic, and whichever party puts the most money where it will do the most good must of necessity carry the day.

C. C. Post, chairman of the State committee, is out with a proclamation to-day in regard to the Yeagley business, which contains the following paragraph:

While all true men will regret the action of Mr. Yeagley, they will, when they remember that the market for such men was never so good as now, be surprised that there are not more, rather than less, of such betrayals. That Mr. Yeagley intended and expected to disorganize and, as far as possible, destroy the greenback party by transferring one of the great organs of the party, with his own allegiance, to the Democrats, there is not a doubt; but in this he was foiled, and he goes to the Democratic party with the execrations of all true men of all parties and the consciousness that he has failed of his intended purpose to hand our organization in Indiana over to Landers and to Hancock and English. Let his name go down to posterity side by side with the names of those others who, a few years since, sought, for a price, to transfer our party to the other wing of the money power; and let us prove our contempt alike of all parties to these nefarious schemes by increasing our efforts to poll an overwhelming vote for our local, State, and national tickets in October and November. Let not your distrust extend to others of your state nominees. The offers with which your candidate for governor was approached have been spurned with the contempt which they deserved, and in him you have a leader worthy to receive your heartiest support and confidence.

The Indianopolis Sun, the organ of the Greenback party in the State, published yesterday an editorial over the signature of its editor, J. K. Speers, from which we make some extracts. After reviewing the conduct of the Democratic party in the South, of which section of the country he is a native, he turns his attention to the condition of things in Indiana, charging that, "We find them resorting to the most infamous and diabolical schemes to carry the State over to the control of the men whose disloyalty was only equaled during the war by their energy in opposing the great moral element that was striving to uphold and defend the liberties for which our fathers fought. Recently they have been plotting and lying in the most reckless manner to carry Indiana for Mr. Landers. They have willfully sought to mislead our voters on every vital issue now before the people. They are telling the Nationals that they intend to repeal the National Banking laws, to pay of the national debt, when they as a party are pledged to refund the public debt into fifty-year 3½ per cent bonds, as proposed by Fernando Wood in his Refunding bill. They have deceived a few simple and unthinking Nationals by this serpent-like wisdom, and now they claim that they are going to be supported by those greenbackers. They plotted to withdraw Byfield without asking the Nationals of the Seventh District to vote for Mr. Landers, and were preparing to go with a lie in their mouths to the Nationals in other counties, telling them that we of this district wished the Nationals throughout the State to vote for Mr. Landers. They even discovered the hellish trick and blocked the game, though at the risk of being crushed by the conspirators. They intended to have suppressed us, to have stolen our vote throughout the State, but the crimes of the wicked are always made known to the righteous."

Having thus painted them as a party, he turns his guns squarely upon their nominees, both State and Congressional, and proceeds to administer a dose which will not be very pleasant to take at this stage of the campaign. Of the Congressional nominees Mr. Speer says: "We know whereof we write, when we charge on the Democratic leaders ungentlemanly, cowardly, and willfully mean conduct in their efforts to steal the National vote in Indiana. They may have captured a National picket here and there, but they have lost ten honest Democratic voters for every one they have drawn into their pit of political perdition. Through lying, in the Seventh District, they are seeking to defeat a National whom they once supported. In the Ninth, they are bowing at our feet and begging us to vote for a Democrat who never made but one greenback speech in Congress, and that was written by a National. In the Second they are running a man by the name of Carlisle for Congress, who has not the manhood to treat a fellow-Congressman with becoming courtesy, especially if he is a National."

Of the State ticket and the idea of fusion he is still more bitter: "And on their State ticket they have for their candidate for Governor a man who once accepted the nomination of the Nationals for Governor and then declined to make the race and became a candidate for Congress against our nominee. Another man is a candidate on their ticket who once pretended to be a Greenbacker, but of late has known nothing too mean to charge against the Greenbackers; and yet he asks our votes to make him Secretary of State. This is the party that wants to fuse with us. When heaven and hell form a copartnership, then may we consider the Democratic proposition to fuse. Fuse with Ben Hill and John Kelly? As well ask us to fuse our morals with the sins of the damned. Fuse with Mr. Landers, who once betrayed us? Fuse with W. H. English, the bondocrat of the West?"

These extracts, taken from a long article of more than two columns, indicate the bitterness of the National leaders toward the party which seeks to use them for the election of Landers. The article was read and approved before publication by all the members of the State ticket and State Central Committee, and fairly reflects the sentiments of the mass of the party. The Democracy now recognize their mistake in attempting to steal a party that they might the better steal a State.

As an episode of the campaign we copy the following extract from a Fort Wayne special to the Times, giving an account of a great Democratic demonstration in that city:

The delegation from Williamsport, in this county, signalized themselves by carrying a rebel flag as they marched into town. The horrified Democratic Central Committee immediately took steps to order the removal of the obnoxious symbol from the ranks, and it was done with considerable grumbling. This episode has caused intense excitement in Republican circles here.

INGERSOLL ON THE CANDIDATES.

In a speech Wednesday night to a very large multitude of people, at Lafayette, Ind., Col. Ingersoll contrasted the merits of the Presidential candidates in the following words:

Now as to the choice of men. Hancock's was wrong, according to the doctrine of State sovereignty. If the Democracy of to-day is right, Hancock should have fought on the other side. I'll admit, though I don't know, that Hancock is clever, but I will not admit that he is a statesman. He has no training but that of a soldier. If he fought for doctrines that he did not believe in, he was a murderer. Hancock chose the profession of a soldier in a time of profound peace. The man who, in time of peace, prefers to devote himself to peace, and when war comes buckles on his sword in defense of his country, is at least as good. What does Hancock represent? Nobody knows. Finance? No. According to the Democratic platform he is for hard money. Why did he congratulate Plaisted? Because he has no convictions, and don't care who beats the Republicans. Has he principles of free trade? I don't know. Of the tariff? He don't know. As a party is so is the President which it will control. Who will elect Hancock? The solid South. If the South was right, put it in power; if wrong, keep it out until it acknowledges it was wrong. Whenever Republicanism is no crime in the South, I'll shake hands. A tariff, for what? The rebels are opposed to American industries being protected by duty. Every working man, mechanic, poor man, and those who believe in this being a nation, and in money good as gold, should vote the Republican ticket. Did Hancock like the rebels ~~in 1861, 1862,~~ 1863 and 1864? No. In 1865? I don't know. Did the rebels like Hancock, during the war? No. Do they now? Yes. Who has changed? I am not willing to trust the man who has accepted the nomination of the solid South.

Now, as for General Garfield, I know him, and have for years. He has got more sense and brain that any man nominated by either party since I was born. He took as much honor from Chickamauga as any man can carry. He is a tried statesman. He has an idea of the future greatness of the United States. Some people ask me: How can you vote for Garfield who is a Christian? For two reasons. I am not a bigot. Garfield is not a bigot. He believes in intellectual liberty, and allows me to settle for my sins with my God, and not with him. I respect him and his rights. These questions of religion should never be brought into politics. I'll vote for the man who believes in liberty. I'm for Garfield. He is a good, broad, liberal, self-educated, self-made man. He was a poor, ragged boy, and his nomination is a certificate in favor of our form of government. Every foreigner should vote for the Republican ticket. We kept this country open and preserved it for the poor people of the world. He is yet a poor man. He was a good soldier. He is in favor of paying the debt. On all great questions he is right. If all Indiana knew him as I do, there would not be 1,000 votes against him. We want a statesman. A man may be a great General but a poor President. Let us have men who have made politics a study. Garfield is an honest man. Take your choice, the Democrat and rebel party or the Republican; a confederacy or a nation; money, gold and silver, or rags; a soldier or a soldier and statesman.

THREE young men in New York, about to cast their first vote, gave each of them in conversation his reason for deciding to vote for Garfield and Arthur.

One, a young broker, said he "was opposed to a change because all values would begin to fluctuate and business would be uncertain."

Another, engaged as a working manufacturer, said "he was for the party that did the most for labor—made it honorable by destroying slavery and was endeavoring to make it more remunerative by protecting its interests."

The third, just beginning his career as a journalist, said he "would not cast his first presidential vote for a party that had been wrong and beaten in every election during the 24 years he had lived at least."

These are good reasons, pithily stated. There are at least an additional million of votes to be cast this year. Every young man should consider whether he will become a political fossil at the beginning of his political career, or whether he will ally himself with liberal ideas and a progressive policy.

Would it be safe to return to power a party which relies largely for its success upon majorities made solid by glaring crimes against the ballot-box?

"WHICH way is your musket a p'intin' to-day?"

DURING the month of September the public debt was reduced $8,974,891. Can the advocates of "a change" hope to do any better than this?

THE uniforms for our Decatur Company of "Boys in Blue" have arrived, and they are exceedingly nobby. A meeting of this company will be held at the court house this evening, at which a full attendance is desired. Be sure to be on hand.

THAT Mt. Zion bribery case is beginning to get interesting. Mr. R. W. Crum, whose affidavit we publish to-day, desires us to say that the story as originally told was wrong, in its reference to a certain druggist at Mt. Zion, who, he informs us, never approached him upon the subject.

JOHN BRENNAN, of Sioux City, Iowa, the most widely-known Irish Democratic orator in that state, has written a letter announcing his determination to vote for Garfield. He says he is opposed to the free trade policy of the Democratic party, which can only help Ireland's enemy and oppressor, England. Will the Review please notice this "distinguished flopper."

NO WONDER the Republican managers dread a change in the Administration! They have a keen apprehension of the consequences that must inevitably follow a thorough investigation of the various departments of Government at Washington. They have a "holy horror" for Democratic inspection of the books that, for twenty years, have been kept by Republican book-keepers. But a "change" is bound to come. The people have made up their mind that the time has arrived for a general over-hauling under the scrutinizing gaze of Gen. Hancock, whose record, running through more than thirty years of public service, is free from every stain.—Springfield Monitor.

The ex-confederate who edits the Monitor betrays the unfair spirit which animates the average Democratic editor everywhere. The party which boasts of its subserviency to the Solid South has had a majority in the House of Representatives since December, 1875, and in both branches of Congress since the fourth of March, 1879, and if the Republicans have been keeping false accounts in the departments why have not these "honest" brigadiers exposed the fact? It would have been a most capital campaign document, and their failure to expose the wrong when they had the power to do so is proof positive that there is nothing there that need fear the light of day. One of the Southern senators (Davis of West Virginia) has been banging away at this charge of fraud in the books of the treasury department for years past. He has been afforded every facility for investigation, and his efforts have been so fruitless that his fellow-partisans in the senate have long since come to regard him as a monomaniac on the subject, and they only smile a sickly smile of disgust when he refers to the question. Not so with the blue-grass editor of the Monitor; he is not a monomaniac—he is only a demagogue.

ENGLISH INTERFERENCE.

It is a somewhat remarkable fact that the people of England are taking an unusual interest in the pending political contest in this country, and the most noticeable feature of the matter is the unanimity with which they hope for the success of the Democratic party. The question naturally suggests itself, Why should the English people and politicians so uniformly desire the overthrow of the Republican party? The answer is not difficult—they desire "a change," in the well grounded hope that the prosperity of this country would be injuriously affected thereby, and their own languishing manufactures correspondingly benefitted. Under the benign influences of Republican rule the United States have taken a position at the very head of the manufacturing nations of the earth, crowding out the English from their best markets and giving an impetus to the material progress of this country such as it never before enjoyed. It is not strange that the English should desire "a change" in the government of their great rival—a change that would disturb our industries and help their own. Judge Kelley, of Pennsylvania, in a recent speech at Philadelphia, well said that "the Democratic party of to-day occupies the position of agent for the British manufacturing interests," because it is seeking to bring about that state of affairs most desired by those interests. The party which seeks to elect Gen. Hancock to the presidency circulates among its campaign documents the publications of the British Free Trade League, one of the officers of which said to an American friend, in speaking of our election, "We will let you have a tariff for revenue, but we will overthrow your protective system." It is well enough for Americans to ponder over this impudent boast of a British association, "we will let you have a tariff for revenue." They will let us have this through the assistance given them by the Democratic party. The British Free Trade League knows its friends; it knows which party is most friendly to the upbuilding of American manufactures, and that is the party it proposes to defeat. It knows which party is pledged to carry out the policy that British manufacturers believe will conduce to their interests, and that party is the one it proposes to assist. To that end it is sowing free trade documents broadcast over the land, at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars to its treasury, hoping to receive its reward in the triumph of the Democratic party, when it expects the drooping manufactures of England to revive in the same degree that those of the United States would decline. Thus is British money used to conserve British interests, and the Democratic party stands ready to assist in the work, caring nothing meanwhile for the American interests that are to suffer by the operation.

Do the sturdy sons of American toil, who are to-day reaping the rich rewards of our healthful system of industry—do they want "a change" merely to benefit British operators?

THE Review still keeps whacking away, in its characteristic style, attempting to predjudice a portion of the people of Decatur against the soldiers' reunion. It began last week to insinuate that the committee intended to give the reunion a political turn, after the editor of that sheet had been assured privately that there was no such intention, and this morning it vainglorioously asserts that political speeches "will not be permitted." We do not know what particular committee has been created and clothed with the attributes of censorship, to revise the speeches and declare in advance what particular things may be said and what must remain unspoken, but if that paper includes in what it calls "political speeches" all reference to the fact that the cause for which the Union soldiers fought was right, and the cause against which they fought was wrong—if such remarks as these come within the category which that paper would proscribe, then its editor will have to listen to "political" speeches or stay away from the reunion.

THAT speech of Sabin's last night must have hurt, the way the Democratic and Independent papers squeal about it.

THE Review complains about Sabin slandering Hancock—a soldier who was wounded in defense of the flag. And who, pray, wounded him? Not any Republican, surely.

WELCOME TO DECATUR.

There are still some people living in Decatur who were here on that bright May day in 1861, when the third company of soldiers enlisted in our midst for the war, marched through our streets on their way to the depot to take the train for Mattoon, there to become Company A of the 21st regiment Illinois volunteers. Nineteen years and more have passed away, and to-day we welcome the few remaining veterans of that company and regiment, who, after fifteen years of peaceful life, come to greet each other and renew the memories of those eventful years which had in them so much that was stirring and momentous. Of the thousand gallant young men who enlisted in the glorious Twenty-first in 1861, less than a hundred come to-gether to-day—most of them grizzled and gray, and some of them bearing upon their persons honorable evidences of the brave part they bore in the great conflict. Of the hundreds who do not respond to the sound of the morning drum beat, many sleep in unknown graves along the streams and by the hillsides of the South, others repose in the land of their ancestors after dragging through years made weary by wounds and sickness, while still others are scattered in remote corners of the land,—honored reminders of days now happily past, let us hope, forever.

With the little remnant of the Twenty-first which comes here to-day is the plain, modest man who rode at the head of the column when they made their first march—then entirely unknown to fame, but now "the foremost citizen of the world." Since he first uttered in the hearing of these battle scarred heroes the words, "Attention, Battalion," what wondrous pages has he written in the world's history! Since he issued his first order to them how unparalleled have been the honors showered upon him! In less than four years after he took command of the then raw and undisciplined regiment the commanding general of the army which had thought itself invincible surrendered to the silent soldier of Illinois, and the great war was over. Another four years saw him in the presidential chair, which, at the end of eight years more, he left to begin that marvelous journey around the world which has no prototype in history, and which is still too fresh in the minds of the people to need more than a passing mention. And to-day he is in Decatur, after having received the plaudits and looked into the faces of more people than were ever seen by any other man in the whole world—after having been honored as no man ever was before, he comes to pass a brief season with his early comrades, the same quiet, undemonstrative, modest man that he was when he first wore the eagles of an infantry colonel. The men of the Twenty-first need not be told that they are entitled to a share of the honors that the civilized world has laid at the feet of their first colonel—they long since realized the fact.

But there are other soldiers here to-day, not less deserving of honor and recognition than those who marched out under the immediate command of the great captain. They are the representatives of an hundered different regiments, from a score of states. They battled for the same holy cause, and they all come in for a full share of our love and veneration. They went out to preserve the life of the Nation when it was assailed by the most wicked and causeless rebellion that the world ever saw, and whether they enlisted in Illinois or Rhode Island, in New York or Iowa, they are alike the pride of all loyal people, the heroes of our day and generation. Decatur honors them all, whether general or private, field-marshal or powder-monkey. The cause for which they fought was, and ever will be, the cause of right; the heresy against which they battled was, and ever will be, the fruitful parent of wrong and wickedness.

These reunions of the soldiers who risked their lives that the Nation might live serve a most beneficent purpose. in keeping alive the memory of a period which witnesssd the most remarkable exhibition of unselfish patriotism that has a place in history. It is too soon to forget that the war against secession was a struggle that involved the most vital questions ever submitted to the arbitrament of the sword. The very existence of free popular government was the stake that was fought for, and the rising generation should not be allowed to forget the fact. Let us, then, give a hearty welcome to the men who fought not only on the winning side, but on the right side—to the men who dared to risk their all that the cause of justice and humanity might live.

CONKLING AT CINCINNATI.

The speech of Senator Conkling at Cincinnati on Friday night, though cut short by the hoarseness of the speaker, was a most masterly effort. We make a few extracts:

"But we are told we must not discuss the issues of the day, because you will imperil the trade that comes from these southern states. When you laid down the tracks to Chattanooga you did not lay down your political, your commercial, or your religious principles. [Applause.] When you drove the spikes in those ties you did not intend to drive nails into the coffin of free speech or free trade. [Applause.] I have heard all this before in the state from which I come. I remember when cotton and calico meetings were held in New York on the idea that men were to sell their principles with their dry goods. I remember when we must not discuss the question of slavery lest it should disturb the conservatism and tranquility of the south. I remember when it was said it would not do to elect Abraham Lincoln. Why not? Because the south was solid against him [applause]; because it was contrary to the interests of the south; because he represented a sectional party; because we proposed to discuss and vindicate the right of a constitutional majority freely to discuss, freely to vote, fairly to be counted, and finally to decide. [Applause.] We were told we could not coerce a state, because it would hurt trade. Let me say to the business men of Cincinnati that there is no friendship in trade, and no sympathy at a bank. [Laughter.] The trade sent up from the south over your southern railroad is not sent because the southern people are as fond of you as Romeo was of Juliet; but because where a man's treasure is, there is his heart. [Laughter.] Where it is to the interest of a community to go she will go, even if the whole city of Cincinnati should prostrate itself into the dust and sing psalms to the solid south. [Applause and laughter.] Those who pursue this argument will finally say with the colored brother, who found that he rolled in the dust, not before Whitfield but before another and totally different man: 'Why, I've just soiled and nastied myself for nothing.' [Laughter.] It is this same spirit of which I speak that largely encouraged the rebellion. The southern political leaders are to-day engaged in bringing about and carrying on a condition of things second only to the rebellion in its folly and its wrong [applause], and so far from its being kind to the south, or politic for Cincinnati, Ohio, or the north, or conservative and wise to encourage what in one phase is known as the solid south, time will show that those are the real friends of the south who beseech and urge them to break up that stupendous folly which we see banded together as southern sectionalism."

The Senator made another telling point, in this locality particularly, when he came to speak of the legislative disturbances likely to be made in case the Democrats get in. As an indication of what they would probably do in the matter of internal revenue, he mentioned that Democratic measure introduced at the last session to largely reduce the tax on whiskey and put it on beer, and asked the Cincinnati brewers what they thought of that. If a tax was to be levied on one or the other to pay pensions and interest on the debt, he had no hesitation in saying that that tax should be visited on whiskey, and not on the harmless light beers and light wines made in this country, and so largely made and used in Cincinnati by the gallant sons of Fatherland. The Senator also urged upon his hearers the necessity of seeing to it that the Republican candidates for Congress were elected from every district. The two parties were opposed to each other. It was not a question of candidates. It mattered not how the candidate might spell his name; it was a question of how many Representatives were to be found in Congress to sustain the decisions of Democratic caucuses, and how many could be arrayed against it. [Applause.] He asked every Republican to stand by the Republican standard no matter in whose hands that standard might be. [Applause.] "I have been in my time, disappointed, too, about nominations," said the Senator [laughter]; but that man is no Republican, that man does not understand the philosophy or the duty of his political creed, who, because a nominee whom he does not favor succeeds in a convention, will turn his back upon the banner or the principles of his party." [Applause.] While on this topic some one sang out the names of Butterworth and Young. Mr. Conkling caught at them immediately, and in a few sentences showed the importance of electing those gentlemen to represent two Congressional districts which, he said, paid every year more revenue and bore more taxation than all the late Confederate States put together. [Great applause.] In the State of New York, he said, the Republicans were doing as well as they knew how to do. [Applause.] They were going to make such an effort that they hoped to be able to join Ohio in that chorus of victory which would rise from sea to sea, speaking of success, prosperity, and advancement. [Applause.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 5.—A reception was rendered Mrs. Gen. Grant and Mrs. Jesse Grant by Mrs. Perry H. Smith this evening which was attended by about 200 ladies and gentlemen. It was the most elegant affair of the reason.

INGERSOLL'S STINGINGS.

The Thrilling Pictures Drawn by Colonel Ingersoll in His Famous Army Reunion Speech at Indianapolis in 1876.

We are often asked to reprint the memorable speech of Colonel R. G. Ingersoll, delivered at the army reunion, at Indianapolis, in September, 1876. We have printed it again and again, and still there is an unceasing demand for it. Millions of copies of that speech have been circulated, yet there is always an inquiry for it. We reprint one of its most striking passages:

"The past rises before me like a dream. Again we are in the great struggle for national life. We hear the sounds of preparation—the music of the boisterous drums—the silver voices of heroic bugles. We see thousands of assemblages, and hear the appeals of orators; we see the pale cheeks of women, and the flushed faces of men; and in those assemblages we see all the dead whose dust we have covered with flowers. We lose sight of them no more. We are with them when they enlist with the great army of freedom. We see them part with those they love. Some are walking for the last time in quiet, woody places, with the maidens they adore. We hear the whisperings and the sweet vows of eternal love as they lingeringly part forever. Others are bending over cradles, kissing babies that are asleep. Some are parting with mothers, who hold them and press them to their hearts again and again, and say nothing; and some are talking with wives, and endeavoring with brave words, spoken in the old tones, to drive from their hearts the awful fear. We see them part, we see the wife standing in the door, with the babe in her arms—standing in the sunlight, sobbing; at a turn in the road a hand waves—she answers by holding high in her loving arms the child. He is gone, and forever.

"We see them all as they march proudly away under the flaunting flags, keeping time to the wild, grand music of war—marching down the streets of the great cities, through the towns and across the prairies down to the fields of glory—to do and die for the eternal right.

"We go with them one and all. We are by their sides on all the gory fields, in all the hospitals of pain, on all the weary marches. We stand guard with them in the wild storm and under the quiet stars. We are with them in ravines running with blood—in the furrows of old fields. We are with them between contending hosts, unable to move, wild with thirst, the life ebbing slowly away among the withered leaves. We see them pierced by the balls and torn with shells in the trenches by the forts, and in the whirlwind of the charge, where men become iron, with nerve of steele.

"We are with them in the prisons of hatred and famine, but human speech can never tell what they endured.

"We are home when the news comes that they are dead. We see the maiden in the shadow of her first sorrow. We see the silvered head of the old man bowed with the last grief.

"The past rises before us, and we see four millions of human beings governed by the lash—we see them bound hand and foot—we hear the strokes of cruel whips—we see the hounds tracking women through tangled swamps. We see babes sold from the breasts of mothers. Cruelty unspeakable! Outrage infinite!

"Four million bodies in chains—four million souls in fetters. All the sacred relations of wife, mother, father and child trampled beneath the brutal feet of might. And all this was done under our own beautiful banner of the free.

"The past rises before us. We hear the roar and shriek of the bursting shell. The broken fetters fall. These heroes died. We look. Instead of slaves we see men, women and children. The wand of progress touches the auction block, the slave pen, the whipping post, and we see homes, and firesides, and school houses, and books, and where all was want, and crime, and cruelty, and fetters, we see the faces of the free.

"These heroes are dead. They died for liberty—they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows and the embracing vines. They sleep beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of sunshine or of storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may turn red with other wars—they are at peace. In the midst of battles, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death. (A voice—"Glory.") I have one sentiment for the soldiers living and dead—cheers for the living and tears for the dead."

THE Cook County Republican Convention yesterday made good judicial nominations—Luther Laflin Mills for State's Attorney, who has so ably filled that office for the past four years, and for Judges of the Superior Court, Kirk Hawes, of the South Side; Elliott Anthony, of the North Side; George Gardner, of the West side, and R. S. Williamson, of Palatine, for the country portion of the county. This is a strong ticket—one which will be heartily supported by the members of the bar, and meriting the support of the citizens generally.

THERE is uncommon wisdom in that observation of General Taylor's which the World quoted on September 9, when it was urging that Hancock need make no pledge on rebel claims: "One who cannot be trusted without pledges cannot be confided in merely on account of them." That's the way the claims letter strikes the public.

HEAR what Ex-Mayor Garvey, an influential and prominent citizen of Piqua, says.

PIQUA, O., Dec. 29, 1879.

The Dr Bosanko Medicine Co.

Gentlemen—I feel under many obligations to you for the relief afforded me by the use of your invaluable medicine, DR. BOSANKO'S RHEUMATIC CURE. I have been for years a sufferer from Chronic Rheumatism, suffering at times most excruciating pains; and depriving me of many nights' sleep. After consulting a number of physicians and obtaining no relief, I commenced using your RHEUMATIC CURE; and after using four bottles, and taking the BLOOD PURIFIER in connection with it, I am absolutely cured, free from any pain, able to attend to my business, and resting perfectly comfortable at night.

Respectfully yours,
S. B. GARVEY.

WHAT DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS MEANS.

I.—The subordination of the Republic to the supremacy of the so-called "Sovereign" States, and the surrender of National sovereignty.

II.—The re-adoption of the pusillanimous doctrine of the last Democratic Administration under James Buchanan, that the United States have no constitutional power to prevent secession, and hence no constitutional power to maintain their existence.

III.—A radical change in the present admirable financial policy of the Government and the substitution of untried financial experiments by untried men.

IV.—The destruction of the National banking system and the substitution of State banks, or of paper promissory notes, issued under the assumed authority of the General Government, whose volume and value will depend upon the result of the ayes and nays on a vote in Congress.

V.—Placing the debt of the Nation for payment in the hands of men all of whom vehemently opposed the resumption of specie payments, and a large majority of whom have either repudiated debts of their own States, or have favored the Pendleton plan of National repudiation.

VI.—Putting an end to the policy of protection to American manufactories and American labor, and reducing the Nation to a state of dependence upon foreign countries for the necessaries of life.

VII.—The continuance of intimidation, terrorism and acts of violence toward the colored citizens of the South, and the refusal of employment, under penalty of starvation, to all who presume to vote with the party that gave them their freedom,

VIII.—And, therefore, the continued disfranchisement of the race in defiance of the supreme law and supreme authority of the National Government.

IX.—Reversing the verdict of Gettysburg and Appomattox, and the verdict of the war; reversing the solemn judgment of the American people, and making the "Lost Cause" the victorious cause.

X.—The continuance of the ballot-box pollution, in the use of tissue ballots, and the false and fraudulent counting of lawful votes actually deposited.

XI.—The elevation to the chief places of power in the Union of all in the South most serviceable and most conspicuous in the war for the Union's destruction.

XII.—The placing in the hands of the late insurgents of the power to reorganize the Supreme Court of the United States in the interest of State sovereignty and secession, and the probable adoption by that reconstructed Court of the theory distinctly justifying secession in the Kentucky resolutions of 1798, which assert that the State is to be the judge "of the mode and measure of redress" in all cases of "infractions" of the "compact" on the part of the National Government.

XIII.—Making the indorsers of these treasonable resolutions, which were readopted in the National Democratic platform of 1856, the indorsers of nullification in 1832 and the promotors of and actors in secession in 1861, the guardians of the Nation, which their acts and teachings, unchecked, would have three times destroyed.

XIV.—The elevation to our most exalted office, requiring the most varied knowledge and largest attainments, of a military officer without training or experience in civil affairs, who has no knowledge of the science of government, of political history, or of constitutional law.

XV.—Raising to the dignity of Vice President, and successor apparent to the Chief Magistracy, a defender of the assasin Brooks, and a supporter of slavery, who has since exhibited his love of oppression by grinding the poor and ejecting them from their almost entirely paid for homes.

XVI.—Finally, Democratic success means placing the Capital of the Union and its government in the peaceable possession of those enemies from whom they were kept, for four years of open war, only by the expenditure of six billions of money and almost a million of lives.

THE parties who are chalking the stoops of loyal citizens with the figures 329 are the same, or the descendants of the same men, who, during the darkest days of the war, were chalking the side walks of Northern citizens with the letters, PEACE.—N. Y. Tribune.

"329" is the new secret sign of the southern Ku-Klux. It takes the place of the coffin, skull and cross-bones. Jeff Davis' friends are just now defacing the walls of Northern towns and cities with these cabalistic numerals.—Chicago Journal.

A Game Fight Between a Dog and Alligator.

Indianapolis News.

An interesting fight was seen at the water works this morning. Superintendent Hamilton has a small terrier dog that knows every nook about the works and knows where things belong. This morning the alligator got out of its cage and started for the river. At the time the dog was playing along the banks at the water's edge. It saw the alligator as it was about to enter the stream, and immediately comprehended the situation. The alligator was out of its proper place but there was no time to give an alarm. The dog immediately started for the scaly trespasser and caught it by the tail. A bitter fight then ensued, as an eye witness related. The dog attempted to pull the alligator up the bank to its cage. It also appeared to try and give an alarm but seemed afraid to open its mouth lest tail holds would slip and the alligator would get away. At this point in the battle the tide turned. The alligator caught the dog by the neck and gave him ample time and cause to raise alarm. The dog did so. The men who had been witnessing the affray came to the dog's rescue. Their appearance frightened the alligator, which released its hold and endeavored to get away. The dog again siezed it by the tail, pulled it to the bank and held it securely until the men could put it in its cage.

A Forcible Little Speech.

In a speech at Saratoga, the other day, William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, said: "I don't love the citizen of Mississippi more than the citizen of New Jersey, and I refuse to give him larger rights. He shall have every right of a loyal American citizen. But he shall have no more! And, I confess, our southern friends seem to claim more. We took them from the scaffold and put them back into the house they sought to burn, and now they send us down into the kitchen. We found them beggars, and took them into partnership, and now they claim exclusive right to stock and till. We met them dusty tramps on the highway, and asked them to ride, and now they seize the reins. This is unmannerly and selfish, and we must be stalwart enough to teach them better. Gentlemen, I want our mighty sky brightened with both the North Star and Southern Cross; our valleys to laugh with the cane and the corn; our hills to bear the orange and the pine; but if our obstinate countrymen will force a selection, let the cane, the orange, and cross perish; let us save the corn, the pine and the North Star."

One of Two Things.

From a Speech at Albany by R. S. Matthews, of Maryland.

But you say, "Can't you trust General Hancock? I know him quite well, and I entertain the highest respect for him personally." Trust him? Yes, if he was leading a Union army, I would trust him. [Applause.] But he is not at the head of the friends of the Union. If Gen. Hancock could rehabilitate, recreate, rebeget the Democratic party I would believe in him. But one of two things must happen, either he will have to change his party, or that the party will change him. I never knew a Democratic President who didn't do the bidding of his party. Did you?

KEEP it in mind that the Democratic party in Congress increased the public expenditures over $41,000,000 in five years. Keep it in mind that the Democratic party, if it gets into power, will abolish the tax on whiskey and tobacco, thus reducing the South's share in the Government taxation to less than 1 per cent, leaving the North to pay more than 99 per cent. Keep it in mind, therefore, that the election of Hancock means a grand Democratic debauch for which the Northern taxpayers will be obliged to foot the bills. Keep all this in mind, and if you vote for a "change," vote with your eyes open.

THE national debt was reduced $8,974,892 during the month just past. Since June 30 of this year the reduction has amounted to $26,573,112. Every one of these dollars is an argument in favor of maintaining the control of the Federal finances in the keeping of the Republican party.

Is Indiana a Pivotal State.

There is a disposition to look upon Indiana as a pivot on which the presidential election turns, the point where the great struggle concentrates and will be decided. This idea is, to a certain degree, erroneous, and should be discarded. Of course a republican victory in a democratic state of this character is a mighty step toward a national victory, but republicans should not be educated to the belief that they have nothing to do after it but lay back on their oars and see the presidency itself. On the other hand, should the state go democratic, there will be so much more the necessity for rallying to the fight in November. A race is not over till it is won. A fight is not ended until there is a victor in the field.

Indiana is certainly a most important field, and the democracy realize that, should they lose it, their hope is substantially over. If they cannot carry Indiana, they can certainly have no hope of New York. They must have forty-seven votes besides the solid south or they are defeated. Even with Indiana this task will be a hard one; without it they have no chance if Republicans will but do their duty.

But a defeat for the republicans in that state means no such disaster to them, for a national victory may be won very well without it. Where the 185 electoral votes necessary to a choice may be had will appear from the following table:

State.	Elect. vote.
California	6
Connecticut	6
Colorado	3
Illinois	21
Iowa	11
Kansas	5
Maine	7
Massachusetts	13
Michigan	11
Minnesota	5
Nevada	3
New York	35
New Jersey	9
New Hampshire	5
Ohio	22
Oregon	3
Pennsylvania	29
Rhode Island	4
Vermont	5
Wisconsin	10
Total	213

It will thus be seen that, leaving out Indiana, the republicans might elect their candidates by carrying the other northern states, and have twenty-eight votes to spare. They could dispense, besides, with Connecticut, Maine, Oregon and New Jersey, and still win the election. By carrying either Virginia or Tennessee, or Florida and West Virginia, they could dispense with even New York and Indiana both.

It is foolish, in view of these facts, to talk about Indiana deciding the contest so far as the republican ticket is concerned. If the democratic party carry Indiana their work begins in earnest. The loss of New York would be fatal to them. There is no other state or states to which they can look for possible success, and and their failure in that state would mean irretrievable defeat.

FACTS.

From the Nation (Ind.).

The truth is that, whatever Mr. Bayard or a few other democrats did or refrained from doing, the bulk of the democrats in congress opposed every measure looking either to the restoration of the public credit or the resumption of specie payments. Some republicans did so, but not always, and never more than a small minority of the party, while the democratic majority was constantly on the wrong side. There is no doubt, too, that if a republican had got up in congress and maintained, as Mr. Bayard now maintains, that good crops, or, as he calls it, "the statesmanship of the plough," would restore specie payments, he would have laughed at him, and with good reason.

We presume that there is little question that the weakness of the stock market, in the teeth of the large railroad earnings and the activity of business in almost every branch of industry, is due in some degree to the great increase of uncertainty as to the result of the presidential election caused by the Maine election. There is nothing the business world likes so much and finds so valuable as certainty with regard to the future; there is hardly any state of the law, as long as property is secure, to which trade cannot adapt itself, and under which active and intelligent men cannot make money, if they are only sure that it will not be suddenly altered. Whatever be the defects of the present financial legislation of the country, it is undeniable that great prosperity exists under it, and is likely to continue for a few years, if no sudden or violent change be made in it. The business of the country has, in other words, adapted itself to the situation created for it by republican legislation; and the republican party has, in the present canvass, the great advantage of being able to promise that if it remains in power this situation will last.

JUDAH P. BENJAMIN, the Confederate Secretary of State, who ran away from this country when secession proved to be a failure, and became a citizen of England, talks like Wade Hampton about the cause of Lee and Jackson. Jere Black says he talked to him in this way in London: "He wanted to talk with me if I had been going to remain longer, and, strangely enough, about American politics, in which he retains great interest. He says 'we' ought to do this and 'we' ought to do that, and 'we ought to carry Hancock through, for it is very necessary to 'us.' He seems to watch events in this country very closely." Evidently he does, for he sees that Hancock is a leading movement for the restoration of the Lost Cause, and that is the exact fact.

My new building is on the street car line, and is of easy approach from all parts of the city It is in a less public place, and is better arranged for privacy I have more room and more conveniences. I must beg leave to say that in Chronic Diseases—especially those of women—my experience is unlimited; that I have done every conceivable kind of surgical operation in this city and county, without the loss of a patient; that I have done thirty-seven operations on the blind for cataract, and have sent them all away seeing but one. I have treated all species of deformity, from crooked backs to cross eyes, with perfect satisfaction. The only apology I have to offer for such talk as this is that it is the TRUTH.

About Ex-Senator Stewart.

Washington Correspondence.

The fickleness of fortune, the heartlessness of flash society and the follies of the nouveau riche cannot be better illustrated than by giving a few facts relating to a late celebrated family in Washington. The wife was the handsome dashing daughter of a well-known politician, now in office at New Orleans. He was a distinguished United States Senator years ago. The husband was a good lawyer, a United States Senator of great ability and a heavy mine operator in his far Western, gold-producing home. He was in his day a Monte-Cristo. He had more money than he could spend. His family went abroad. He built a grand house, copied from some nobleman's palace somewhere abroad—round rooms, square rooms, oblong rooms, banqueting rooms, ball rooms, drawing rooms, picture rooms, and everything that was grand. And the wife abroad furnished this grand house. I was told by a very intelligent upholsterer the other day, a trustworthy man who knows his business, that the gobelin tapestry in one window of this house cost 45,000 francs, and that the chair covers of the same material, 2,000 francs each. Think of it! the seats and backs of a dozen or so chairs costing $400 each! The same authority also says that one rug in the house cost $2,000, and that the curtains in the whole house cost $30,000. To-day, the Senator is no longer in Congress, but is practicing his profession like any lawyer in San Francisco and is getting a good living. His house in this city is vacant. He cannot sell it, and nobody can afford to hire it. No doubt the moths are having a good time in the gobelin tapestry and the point lace curtains. Wealth that is made in a day is ignorant, ill mannered, thoughtless, inconsiderate, ephemeral.

The Wheel Horse.

There is a wheel horse in every family; some one who takes the lead on all occasions It may be the older daughter possibly the father, but generally it is the mother. Extra company, sickness, give her a heavy increase of the burden she is always carrying. Even Summer vacations bring less rest and recreation to her than to others of the family.

Woman's work is never done. She would never have it done. Ministering to father and mother, cherishing her husband, nourishing and training her children—no true woman wants to see her work done. But because it is never done she needs resting times. Every night the heavy truck is turned up, the wheel horse is put up into the stable, and the labor and care are dismissed till the morrow. The thills of the household vans cannot be turned up at night and the tired housemother cannot go into a quiet stall for repose. She goes to sleep to-night feeling the pressure of to-morrow. She must have had "an eye" over all until everyone was in bed, and must keep an eye ready to open any moment to answer the needs of children, and open both eyes, bright and early to see the machinery well started for a new day—Christian Union.

O, Peaches!

The peach originated in Persia and Northern India, and is of the same genus as the almond. The nectarine differs from the peach only in being smooth while the peach is downy. It is a mere variety, probably produced and assuredly preserved by cultivation The freestone peach of the French is their peche, while the cling stone is their pavie A remarkable variety, of Chinese origin, has the fruit compressed and flattened with almost evergreen leaves. The peach is cultivated widely in Southern Europe, in many parts of the East, in South America and Australia, though it has never, it is believed attained the perfection of the fruit in the United States. New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Ohio raise superb peaches, and have often orchards containing from 20,000 to 25,000 trees. The quantity of dried peaches is reported to be steadily increasing, while peach brandy is diminishing. Peach water, obtained by bruising the leaves of the tree, mixing the pulp with water, and distilling, is not only employed for flavoring, but in medicine as a sedative and vermifuge.

How Uncle Sam Built a Cellar.

When the Union troops built their fortifications at Alexandria, the commanding general selected the site of Col. Gordon's property as the best location for the magazine. And there they built the best magazine the money and skill of the government could construct. Great walls of stone, thick, smooth laid floors of brick, ingenious contrivances for protection against dampness, fire, frost, rain either from heaven or columbiads. It was water-proof, frost proof, fire proof bomb proof, and was built down in the earth to last a couple of centuries or so. And when the war was over the confederate colonel returned home he had his house to rebuild, for war had swept it away. Here was a United States magazine on his place, the government did not need nor care for it no longer, and the colonel wisely built his home right over it. And now he has the finest, coolest, and costliest cellar under any private house in the country.

An Oil City man went fishing Saturday, and he came home with nothing but a little half-pound bass. "Is that all you caught?" asked his friends. "That's all," replied the man. "How many bites did you have?" "None," exclaimed the fisherman, and the whole crowd cried, "He's found! he's found! Here is the honest fisherman." He'd have had fifty invitations to drink in ten minutes if a small boy hadn't broken through the crowd and said: "See here mister, yer gave me a bogus nickel for that air fish." And now that crowd has no faith in human nature

A man was found in Pennsylvania who voted for Thomas Jefferson in 1796 at the third presidential election, which was the first contested national election He is 108 years old and must have born in 1772, and have been a voter in 1793. He is four years older than the nation.

Religious

Bishop Littlejohn gives us some very timely words on the subject of neglect of church attendance. He says: "Some neglect their duty in respect to church attendance because something is always wrong. In their opinion certain things are not as they should be. The music does not suit them. Is the choir a quartet? congregational singing should be substituted. Is there a chorus? a quartet should be introduced in its place. If the pews are rented, they should be free; and if they are free they should be rented. The preaching is too warm or too cold; the sermons are too long or too short. And these are objections with which neither conscience nor religious principle has anything to do, yet they influence great numbers, even persons who profess to be and call themselves christians, and ought to know better than to accord to them any weight. Legitimate attractions are admissable: yet, if church attendance is a bounden duty it is based on the positive commandments of God, and must be considered independently of such minor questions.

Serpentine.

A young British woman, built on the disjointed plan, which indicates a brain given to esthetics, has serpent bracelets coiled above and below her all too evident elbows, and around her ankles; but the finishing touches are a serpent thrice twisted about her supple waist, and another serpent, ells and ells long wrapped outside her dress above her knees in guise of a scarf overskirt

Luther Benson, the other reformed drunkard, is now making democratic speeches in Indiana. In a temperance speech not long since, at Greenwood, being then in one of his repentant moods, he stated that when he was "fifteen years in hell" he was accustomed to vote the democratic ticket with his head averted, clutching tightly his nose with his lefthand and holding the ticket with his right, and then rush around the first corner to puke.

Gen. John McDonald, the leader of the whisky ring of 1875, was advertised to speak at the opera house in Lafayette, Ind., on Saturday night, but failed to arrive. He didn't lose anything thereby, for, of the three persons waiting to get in, two were bill posters. The people do not take stock in a man who goes about advertising himself as the chief of a $7,500,000 steal

From Saturday's Daily
The Boys in Blue.

Pursuant to the call published yesterday evening in the REPUBLICAN, quite a number of enthusiastic Republicans assembled at the court house last night and effected an organization to be known throughout the campaign as The Boys in Blue

Col H W Rowell was elected chairman, and Jno T. Montgomery secretary The object of the meeting having been stated, the election of officers was next in order, whereupon Geo S Durfee was chosen captain, H P Lytle, first lieutenant, Jno A Barnes, second lieutenant and W W Foster, orderly sergeant

Mr Jno K Warren stated that Mr Orlando Powers had, with the liberality characteristic of that patriotic gentleman, consented to the use of the large hall over Linn & Scruggs new building, for the purpose of the company

On motion it was decided to incorporate a glee club in the organization and the chair appointed Capt Geo S Durfee and D. C Shockley a committee of two to make the necessary arrangements

W C Johns candidate for prosecuting attorney being loudly called upon for a speech responded in a happy and enthusiastic manner, after which the meeting was adjourned to Monday night at seven and a half o'clock, at the court house when the further recruiting of the company will be prosecuted

One hundred signatures were obtained to the roster of the company but the good work should not stop until a regiment of Republican voters are enrolled to do what may be necessary throughout the campaign

Let the members of the Garfield and Arthur club turn out en masse next Monday night let the glow and fire of true Republicanism be lighted in every heart and such a response to the call of duty by one and all be made that terror will seize upon the hearts of all enemies of good government, and advocates of a change be relegated to the shadows of obscurity

BLANCHE aged 3 years, and Scott, aged 3 years children of Mr and Mrs David Alexander, who reside on West North street, came near losing their lives on Thursday of this week The servant girl in the family had placed a quantity of arsenic on the window sill of her room, for the purpose of killing rats that were becoming too familiar for comfort Unfortunately during the afternoon of Thursday the children gained access to the room, and not being old enough to realize their danger began eating the poison They had been thus engaged for some little time before Mrs Alexander discovered what they were doing Both children were taken suddenly and violently ill but by the prompt arrival of the family physician an antidote was hastily applied which destroyed the effects of the deadly poison It was an extremely narrow escape for the little ones who are now out of danger and resting comfortably Arsenic will be banished from the Alexander residence in the future and a hungry cat will go for the rats

It now turns out that Daniel Lee the crazy man who is still in custody of Jailor Adams at the calaboose previous to his capture, while in a nude condition Tuesday morning, had been on a big drunk but where he came from or what became of his duds is yet a mystery The wind was blowing pretty strong Monday night and he may have been wafted here from Peoria Springfield Bloomington Danville or some other point where whisky flows freely Dan has confessed that he had been drinking hard and that he always loses his mind when on a spree The best thing he can do in the future is to let the stuff alon He has a warm cell at the calaboose and will doubtless shape up in time to participate in the reunion next week

WE find the following news item in the Champaign Gazette of the 29th instant "The many friends of Mrs A T Lewis, nee Lillie Gipson, will be pained to learn that she died during parturition, at Deadwood, Dakota, on the 23rd instant The child 'a boy was alive at last accounts — She was only 20 years of age and her death is a sad blow to her husband Her remains are expected in this city this week' The deceased is a niece of Mr W H Gipson of this city, and was known to many of our people

THE new German Lutheran church is rapidly approaching completion The brick walls are up and the imposing roof is adjusted When finished it will afford the congregation a much more comfortable edifice in which to worship In this connection we will state that the ladies of the congregation will give a three days fair and festival in the circuit court room on Oct 18th, 19th and 20th Patronize it

THIS afternoon at 2 o'clock the awning in front of the REPUBLICAN office caught fire but by the prompt application of a few pails of water the flames were soon extinguished Loss $15 The cause of the conflagration' resulted from a chance coal spark which accidentally fell from above where a number of tinners were engaged in soldering the tin roof

ON yesterday afternoon Mr John L Adams received notice of the death of his aged mother, which took place at Versailles, Ripley county Ind on the 26th inst Her name was Ann Adams She was born in Boone county Ky August 11th, 1789 and was therefore in the 92d year of her age A brother of the deceased, aged 90 and a sister aged 85 are still living

THE trial of the People vs Michael Carroll Peter Sell's and Samuel Hewes, charged with robbing John McEvoy at Weber's beer garden on Monday evening commenced all of yesterday Justice Curtis thought the evidence insufficient to warrant conviction and the accused were accordingly discharged from custody

THE MORBID LIVER

An eminent clergyman says 'that a change of stomach and liver would benefit the morbid sinner almost as much as a change of heart' Yet many attribute an irritable temper and morose disposition to the ingenious workings of the devil, why they are simply the symptoms of dyspepsia indigestion, torpid liver constipation, or general or nervous debility, and are readily removed by a few doses of Dr White's Dandelion Alterative For sale by Hubbard & Swearingen sep30-d&w2w

REPUBLICAN PICNIC

How the Day was Spent at Sulphur Springs, Near Mt. Zion

From Thursday's Daily

Yesterday morning dawned bright and cold, but before the forenoon was half gone wind clouds overspread the sky, and most of the day was disagreeably raw and cold. The weather was unfavorable for an outdoor meeting, but the Republicans of Mt Zion township seemed undismayed by the elements and turned out in good force at Sulphur Springs There were, in addition to Mt Zion people, representatives present from Milam, Long Creek, Wheatland and Blue Mound townships, including quite a number of Democrats and Greenbackers The Decatur Band went out in the morning and added much to the interest of the occasion by their superb music

In the forenoon speeches were made by Col H W Rowell and W C Johns, both of whom were listened to with the greatest attention Col Rowell spoke of the record of the two parties, while Mr Johns confined his remarks to a discussion of the federal election laws At the close of Mr Johns' remarks an adjournment was had for dinner, of which there was more than an abundance for every body present. Several of the speakers and visitors accepted the kind invitation of Mr and Mrs John Henry to dine with them at their comfortable home near by, where a most elegant and sumptuous repast was spread

In the afternoon the audience listened with great interest to an address by Gen Richard Rowett, of Carlinville, who talked like a farmer to an audience of farmers, in a style which pleased his hearers immensely He discussed the issues growing out of the war, paid particular attention to the record of the Democratic party—its doctrines and traditions—to which the party has pledged itself anew He recalled the memories of the war, and exhorted his soldier friends not to forget the brave comrades they had laid in the grave

At the close of Gen Rowett's speech, although it was growing quite late the audience still lingered to hear the remarks of Mr Cannon, who spoke for about half an hour in his peculiarly forcible style He paid his respects to the solid South, and discussed the evils of state rights He was frequently applauded, and closed amid the wildest cheers

Mr W C Bailey, the popular campaign vocalist who was present added much to the interest of the day by his stirring songs The meeting was a decided success, and cannot fail to do much good

A Hancock Man

He was discovered lying on the door step of the REPUBLICAN office sound asleep and bearing upon his clothing and person unmistakeable evidences of having been worsted in a bout with one Sour Mash He was waked up and told to move along—take his form from our door so to speak—and after considerable assistance he managed to stagger to his feet and, turning around, to take a survey of the front of the building "Republ (hic)lican office, (hic) eh? Guess (hic) yer not a Han(hic)cock man, then eh? "No we're not a Hancock man' "Well, by hokey, (hic) I am' and he staggered off to pledge himself anew to the doctrines and traditions of the Democratic party

A WABASH employe named Samuel Findley, whose home is at Rock Island, Ill, came near being killed this morning between 6 and 7 o'clock Sam is a young man of more than ordinary intelligence and like many other people, hankers after apples While on his way to work this morning he passed near a gentleman's orchard, directly east of Chambers, Bering & Quinlan's check rower establishment and north of the Wabash track Sam noticed some apples lying on the ground in the enclosure and he stepped through an opening in the hedge fence to get one or more of them to satisfy his longing for the same He was in the act of reaching for the forbidden fruit when bang went a shot gun, and Sam skipped forgetting all about the apples and carrying away four or five small bird shot which riddled his silk cap in as many places and lodged in his head Sam says the man who fired the shot whose name he does not know followed him down the track for some distance with the gun in his hand but did not fire at him again The would be apple pilferer is not seriously hurt He may thank his lucky stars that he didn't get the full charge He came up town this morning with the intention of having his playful assailant arrested for an attempt to commit murder but whether or not the arrest will be made is yet undecided The owner of the orchard has doubtless been troubled with thieves and many people justify him in the act of peppering those who would rob him of the result of his labor and care Apples are but 15 cents a bushel and they are unusually plentiful this year

AN ENJOYABLE PARTY.

The Decatur Guards Grand Opening Reception and Ball at the Armory Last Night.

From Friday's Daily

Just as everybody expected the grand opening reception and ball of the season of 1880 81, given by the Decatur Guards, Co. H 5th Reg, I N G, at their spacious armory last night, was very largely attended by a fashionable throng of the youth and beauty of the city There were perhaps 60 couples present, and in all respects the affair was one of the most notable and brilliant parties ever given in the hall, reflecting great credit upon the superior management of the several efficient committees who vied with each other in contributing toward the success of the occasion The armory was most tastefully decorated with innumerable flags, drums and portraits, and from the centre of the hall was suspended the costly and beautiful colors of the company, the gift of Decatur ladies The elegantly furnished reception room was greatly admired by the ladies for whose exclusive use on festive occasions it is specially fitted up regardless of expense. The members of the company appeared in their new dress uniforms, thus adding largely to the splendor of the scene The officers' suits attracted particular attention but the modest captain, W W Foster, and Lieutenants Elwood and Wismer, who received many words and smiles of flattering praise from the fair ladies on their fine appearance, bore up under it all with becoming grace Splendid music was furnished by Prof Goodman's full orchestra, and the 22 well arranged numbers were danced, including 'We Still Live," 'Co K," "Our Guests," 'Our Ladies' 'Our Silent 9" 'U S Grant,' P H Sheridan, Oct 5th, '"Our Captain,' and the Drum Corps' "The Silent" was charming waltz and while the merry throng was whirling about the hall, the members of the squad present (J M Ehrman, Harry Scanlan Wm Conard, Jacob Walters, Frank Curtis Will Stevenson and Steve Provost) with guns in hand, took up a position near the entrance to the room, and went through Upton's manual of arms silently without receiving an order from any one This unexpected exhibition attracted much attention and showed what close application and determination will accomplish

Between 11 and 12 o'clock it was announced that refreshments would be served at Wood's and nearly every one present repaired to that popular restaurant where oysters in all styles were served as promptly as the rush would permit The bivalves were large, fresh good and plentiful, and stewed fried and broiled to a turn, being in perfect keeping with the elegance of the fashionable affair

We congratulate the Guards on the pronounced success of their opening reception, and we but echo the wish of all present last night, when we say that we hope that another invitation soiree, under their management, will soon be announced A full list of the happy company present and a description of the many elegant toilets worn by the fair ladies would consume too much space to day The strangers present were Miss Alice Jennings of Sullivan Miss Edwards of Aurora Miss Mary Kyner of Macon Miss Jennie Moffett, of Jacksonville Miss Ella Reeme, of Chicago Chas Armstrong, Chicago Wm Cole and Mr Sheets, of Indianapolis Mr Staubal of Bloomington Dennis and Bernard Bradley Mr Osborn and others Lieutenant O B Gorin in full uniform represented the Grenadiers Co K 5th Reg I N G

Ex-Senator Tipton

The above named elderly gentleman hailing from the State of Nebraska happened to strike Decatur last evening and made a talk of over an hour's duration to a fair crowd of democrats and republicans at the court house The talk was made by a renegade politician, who failed in early life as a minister of the gospel and then when elected as a U S Senator, he went square back on his Republican constituents and joined the Greeleyites hoping in the event of the success of the Liberal Movement to be greatly blessed by a retention in office He was doomed to disappointment, and now he is not only out of office and a democrat but a pretty fair representative of the rebellious bulldozing spirit entertained by the brigadiers The harangue was a rambling disconnected talk of little force and proved conclusively that the distinguished flopper is what he has long been known to be a rank demagogue A gentleman now in Decatur who was present at the rally says that at Lincoln Nebraska some years ago Tipton talked to but 37 people which shows how he stands at home

From Friday's Daily
The Latham Rally.

At Latham yesterday the Republicans held a very satisfactory and successful open air meeting Delegations were present from Lincoln Mt Pulaski and other points in Logan county while the adjacent portions of Macon county were also largely represented The Mt Pulaski brass band furnished the music and played with much taste Hon D C Smith of Pekin candidate for congress in the 13th district spoke in the forenoon Gen J H Moore in the afternoon and Hon J G Cannon in the evening — There was also a torch light procession of very creditable proportions at night and the enthusiasm rose to fever heat as the long line of torchbearers in their band some uniforms filed through the crowded streets Latham is the center of an intensely Democratic neighborhood but the Republicans there are wide awake and will give a good account of themselves in November

The Celebration of the 25th Anniversary of the Organization of Celestial Lodge No. 186, I. O. O. F.

From Friday's Daily.

The Odd Fellows of Decatur and visiting brethren from lodges located at Maroa, Blue Mound and Niantic, participated in a grand fraternal love feast and banquet at the court house last night, in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the organization of Celestial Lodge No 186 I O O F, of Decatur, which occurred on yesterday The circuit court room was brilliantly illuminated, and made as inviting as possible In this room at the opening of the exercises there were perhaps 250 people, among whom were many ladies It was expected that Past Grand Master J H Oberly, and Representative Orendorf would be present, and deliver appropriate addresses, but they were detained elsewhere on account of other engagements However, Bros John Irwin and Rev D P Bunn favored the fine assembly with appropriate remarks of deep interest to the brotherhood Bro Irwin's remarks were of an historical nature He went back to Sept 29, 1855, when Celestial Lodge was organized with a membership of 20 persons with S K Thompson as Noble Grand, and also made a happy allusion to the Odd Fellows' hall given at the old Barnum House on the evening of that day, of which some of the charter members who have since become bright and shining lights in the churches, were the efficient managers The varied experiences and steady growth of the Lodge were told in a manner that did not fail to gain the closest attention of the audience, and at the close Bro D P Bunn delivered a fine address on the teachings and benefits of the organization The good Parson doubtless had in mind the next number on the programme and he made his remarks somewhat shorter than is his custom However, he did his theme full justice

THE BANQUET

At the conclusion of the above exercises, the doors of the banquet hall in the grand jury room were thrown open and 152 persons took seats on both sides of the three long tables The feast included every thing that could tempt the appetite from a pickle to oysters in all styles and fragrant hot coffee All was arranged and served in fine style by Mr A H Varney, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel who gave the affair his undivided personal attention The tables at the beginning fairly groaned beneath the weight of the good things of life but when the feast ended they looked as if they had been visited by a Marshfield tornado, which showed conclusively the superior eating qualities of the brotherhood The company was so large that a second table was set but there was an abundance of substantials and delicacies for all After the attack on the tables the company returned to the assembly room and passed the remainder of the evening pleasantly together in a social way In all respects the celebration was a complete success—one that will long be remembered by the fraternity

SOLID SOUTHERN SENTIMENT

ANOTHER HANCOCK MAN "INSULTED

From a Recent Speech by United States Senator Vance, in Warren Co, North Carolina

The south asks no bold and unfair thing when she demands her rightful compensation for homes destroyed, farms laid waste and pillaged, property stolen, and slaves released by the Yankee plunderers who lived upon us and then refused us bounty And it is time that the whole north should understand this It is time that the north should understand that it must atone, as far as it can, for all the south has suffered in body, pocket and soul Our time is coming, boys, and the long purgatory that we have gone through will only make our paradise the brighter when we get there

SOLID AGAINST PENSIONS FOR UNION SOLDIERS

From the Meridian (Miss) Mercury, (Dem), September 28

How General Hancock would stand upon the original proposition of bestowing pensions at all, he has never indicated that we know of, but were it a new and original question to pension Federal soldiers of the late war, and it were within our knowledge that he was a friend of the measure it would cause us so to doubt his statesmanship and sense of justice that, we are free to say we should hesitate to support him In that case—of its being a new measure —we would insist on pension all or pension none We would not expect the successful party to rise to the height of magnanimity of supplying wooden legs to the one legged confederate soldier, but we would expect a man claiming to be a statesman to rise above the stupidity and meanness of compelling the one legged confederate soldier to pay for the wooden leg the government furnishes the Federal soldier when both are owing and paying allegiance to the same government In this connection we think to make a remark about southern congressmen who vote for these pension laws and appropriations They stultify themselves every time they do it and disgrace themselves besides

EDITOR REPUBLICAN—The great key note of the campaign of Friends Creek and Whitmore township was sounded yesterday, Oct 1st at Mrs Dickey's grove by a grand rally of the Republican voters with their families The affair was signalized by red hot truths thrown into the Democratic ranks by Mr Cannon It is but a just tribute to pay Hon J G Cannon when we say he made one of the most forcible and convincing arguments we have heard this campaign All doubt of his forthcoming contest with Mr Scott is at rest No one knows where Mr Scott is now or will be, when it comes to voting Mr Cannon will be found advocating and voting for a sensible class of people an intelligent class of people and a people who know not treason

Mr Cannon is too valuable a man in Congress to be defeated There was a number of Democrats present who couldn't smile as their conscience dictated otherwise When everybody else would laugh at the speaker these Democrats would writhe and twist their features turn around and wish for the shot gun policy up north Mr Vail made a solid speech and is good in his arguments The glee club was the thing in the right place There was not a drunken man on the grounds It is said one half of the people who attended the Maroa Hancock pole raising were under the influence of liquor DOMINO

Marriage of Miss Annie Haworth and Mr Peter Brueck at the Palatial Residence of the Bride's Parents

Brief Description of the Elegant Toilets and a Full List of the Costly Presents

From Wednesday's Daily

The spacious palatial residence of the bride's parents, Hon and Mrs L L Haworth pleasantly located on West William street, was brilliantly illuminated last night in honor of the marriage of their only daughter At an early hour the elegantly appointed parlors and reception rooms were filled with a large representation of the fashionable society people of Decatur, all of whom were the recipients of a warm welcome from the host and hostess The decoration of the parlors which was done under the direction of Miss Flora Race and Mrs J B Shellabarger, was made in charming good taste Festoons of fresh smilax and pressed pines hung from the ceilings, canopy fashion, and in the wide hall at the entrance were to be seen the traditional floral pipes of peace A large and handsomely arranged floral horn of plenty was suspended from the ceiling of the east parlor, beneath which the ceremony was performed The other ornamentations were a large emblem of "good luck" made of cut flowers and two lovely floral marriage bells one of which was the offering of Mrs R J Oglesby The lace curtains were edged with smilax and the carpets were covered with white canvass

At 6 20 o'clock Prof Goodman's full orchestra sent forth the entrancing strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, and while the guests waited for the coming of the eventful moment the bridal party preceded by the ushers Joseph B Dinges and Herbert Bartholomew descended the wide stairway from the upper rooms and took their places in the east parlor, where the officiating clergyman Rev W H Prestley pastor of the Presbyterian church waited their coming

The nuptials were then duly solemnized which made Mr Peter H Brueck and Miss Annie Haworth husband and wife followed by a short prayer and the benediction The responses were clearly and firmly made The guests then pressed forward to offer their congratulations Among the number was the aged grand mother of the bride Mrs Elizabeth Alexander now in her 80th year and Mr and Mrs Mahlon Haworth, parents of the bride's father

The attendants were Miss Adele Shellabarger and L A Johnson and Miss Laura Einstein and Mr Theodore D Hinchcliffe of St Louis

The bride looked lovely in an elegant trosseau of plain and striped brocaded satin trimmed with point Duchess lace and pearl gimp The dress was made in princesse form Upon her head she wore the conventional bridal veil and orange blossoms Ornaments woven gold neck lace and diamond pendant

The bridesmaids wore dresses of India mull, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and rose and blue sashes, floral necklaces and bracelets

Congratulations over the sumptuous wedding feast was served party fashion The bride, groom attendants and immediate relatives of the bride surrounded a large table prepared for them and while the guests discussed the viands and delicacies the rooms were filled with enlivening music by the orchestra

The rooms having been cleared of the tables, the bridal party participated in a stately wedding quadrille and at 10 o'clock Mr Brueck and his bride who was attired in a handsome traveling habit entered a waiting carriage and departed for Chicago on a brief tour being accompanied to the train by the attendants

The closing hours of this most brilliant social event were devoted to social chat and terpsichorean pleasures and not until after 1 o'clock had the last guest departed

The wedding was one of the most notable fashionable affairs that has ever been chronicled in this city, every preparation having been made without regard to trouble or expense

Peter and Annie have the best wishes of their many friends here and elsewhere for their present and future happiness May their future be as bright and auspicious as the present is the benediction of the REPUBLICAN

The bridal presents were numerous and many of them very valuable Want of space prevents the publication of the list

Manhood: How Lost. How Restored!

Just published a new edition of Dr Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of SPERMATORRHEA or Seminal Weakness Involuntary Seminal Loss's IMPOTENCY Mental and Physical Incapacity Impediments to Marriage etc also CONSUMPTION EPILEPSY and FITS induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance etc

The celebrated author in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates from a thirty years successful practice that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife pointing out a mode of cure at once simple certain and effectual by means of which every sufferer no matter what his condition may be may cure himself cheaply privately and radically

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land
